Hi,

here in Oslo, Norway, we have a small hacklab (<http://humla.info>)

inside a much much much muuuch bigger social space (<http://www.Hausmania.org>).

We are a pretty small collective but with great aspirations :)

We are thinking about organizing a trans hackmeeting here the weekend
after the g8

demonstrations this summer. That is 15, 16, 17 of june 2007.

We have a hacklab with 10 online machines, very fast net, webradio, videoprojector, a backyard for barbecues, and we can provide one or more big big rooms for guesting people, provide vegan food for cheap, provide (relatively) cheap beer and whatever else come to your mind.

We also have little money for special necessities (visas for eastern european hackers for example).

We can also organize local propaganda of the event in the city, and make a poster.

What we can't provide, is have you willing to come!

If anybody is interested, please say.

(humla mailing list at : intern@humla.info, channel #humla on

don't mourn, organize.

Me! :)

Cool guys, the "setup" you've explained can be very interesting and imho it's a serious purpose.

We have just to understand if people from this list are going to move on for next thk.

So, what you want to do?

Imho first we've to analyze our situation: this list is dead since 2004 except for sporadic news from hack (and not) world, and I think we've to gather ourselves again on this list and start speaking (and working) for next thk.

This purpose is a point from which we can start discussion about another trans-hackmeeting, too.

Ciao!
